

True Color Summary

Brianna Quillin

---

My color was gold, which represents someone who wants to belong, and cares about responsibility. They also have strong values such as trust, commitment, rules, and my family and home. The abilities they excel in are organization; they are caretakers, and like setting up procedures. A gold is also very responsible, parental, careful, and seeks closer. I feel as though the results from the True Color test is spot on. Whenever I hang out with my friends I am considered the “mom” of the group because I have to make sure everyone is okay, and they have everything they need. I also like organization and schedules, and consider myself trustful, and committed. Nothing really surprised me except decision making because I take forever to decide; I have to have all the facts before I make a decision.

Being a gold helps me because in the future I want to be an accountant, and that means you need to be organized, follow the rules, and be careful. Golds work best in an organized environment, and strive for rules, and that is what it is like in a firm. When it comes to friends, I tend to get annoyed when they are late, and when we have a set plan of what we are doing. Golds are very organized and helpful people, so if you need a good worker, look for a gold.
